A Short Summary

IN-SS as Ong-Hok-Ham Memorial Academic Programs (OMAP)

The IN-SS (International Diaspora – Summer School) was designed as a homage to Onghokham or a three-week study program (short-term) which takes place in selected campuses of the insular Southeast Asia and around the Austronesian region.

The IN-SS was initiated in Europe on August 30th, 2015 by universal historian, polemologist & econophenomenologist Mai Dar (Marburg University) as a homage to a prominent Southeast Asian historian Ong Hok Ham (1933-2007): a multi-campus, multi-disciplinary, multi-regional university system for excellence academic short term study program, which open for all international, regional & local participants (academies, professionals, politicians, government officials, non-government activists, etc.).

- Duration: 4 weeks (one month)
- Program dates: (expected, see: Upcoming 'International School' Date: <https://inss.netlify.com/>)
- Scheduled travel days: (expected, see: Upcoming 'International School' Date: <https://inss.netlify.com/>)

- Participants (minimum): approx. 20 students (minimum) in Sumatra and approx. 20 students in Java
- Accreditation: The IN-SS can be accredited as 8 Credit-Points. Please see the IN-SS Fact Sheet for possible course accreditations. Please be aware that the Credit-Points earned at the ID-SS could also be confirmed as part of "foreign experience abroad" (Auslandserfahrung) in selected partner universities. Credit Transfer Program could give a large opportunity for related students to create their own international study experiences and earn course credits at other overseas universities.
- Teaching methods: lecture modules, discussions, case-studies, project work in international groups, in-class group presentations, guest lectures, etc. Participants will be able to experience different cultures and meet various background of people in the Austronesian or Southeast Asian region.
- Course outline: The IN-SS Course Outline will be determined by latest end of the target date and will be sent to all candidates or participants after successful online registration.
